

Path

As the mind map indicates the path we will follow is the lesson cycle many teachers choose in class:

- Gathering pupils' attention,
- Presenting content
- On task practice.

The activities are based on acquiring the non-verbal skills which will enable you to affect the heart of learning: the trainer-student relationship. Using this model will make you competent in creating a positive learning atmosphere in your groups despite the different styles or cultural diversity of your students. The results you can expect are: more well-behaved groups, better performance by learners and less teacher stress

